GANTT READING MURDER WARRANT

A sensational arrest will be made in the Mary Phagan murder mystery within

It will be based on the firm theory of the police and detectives that the strangled girl was never outside the factory of the National Pencil Company from the time that she went in there for her pay Saturday noon until her dead and mutilated body was taken to the morgue early Sunday morn-

> The detectives do not believe that Arthur Mullinax is guilty of the murder. They do not believe that J. M. Gantt is guilty of the murder .-

They do not place any dependence on the identific ations of Gantt and Mullinax made by various persons before Chief of Detectives Lanford.

They are confident that the author of the terrible deed was a person who is not under arrest at the present time. They know his name. They have talked with him. They have his story of what he declares is all he knows of the happenings Saturday night in the building of tragedy on Forsyth Street.

But they are not satisfied with his tale. It is known that they will have him behind the bars within

It is known that the signs of weakening on the part of Newt Lee, the negro night watchman, have had a great deal to do with the pending sensational arrest. The negro's attitude all along has led to the belief that he was shielding some one.

One moment he has almost admitte dthat he is protecting a man who has befriended him and helped him, and an instant later he has suddenly gone back into silence with the solution of the mystery trembling on his very lips.

In the still hours of this morning, unknown to anyone save the authorities, Newt Lee was put through a searching, grilling "third degree" that left him weeping and nerveless.

Before the hangers-on had congregated about the police station and the hords of informers, witnesses and merely curious had swpt down upon the detective force, Detective John Black quietly made his way to the police station and into the cell of the bowed and almost broken negro.

It was hardly 4 o'clock this morning when Lee was startled to see the detective's form before his cell. Black walked in and sat down. From that time for two pitiless hours the detective plied the negro with questions.

A great fear appeared on the negro's heart. Not that he feared for himself or because of his own guilt, but that he was frightened at the terrors of the law which slowly were forcing him to open his lips and reveal the man who was hiding behind

Black tried to remove the terrors that oppressed the black

"We know you did not do the murder," the negro repeatedly was assured. "We know you are guiltless of the whole affair. But we know that you know exactly who did it and that you are This note, however, brings up an protecting that person.

Just as Lee was nodding his head in assent, he suddenly vould straighten up in an affrighted manner and declare:

'No, no, boss, I don't know nothing about it. I don't know nhoting about it, sah. Before God, I don't.

Then Black would begin his long line of questioning all over again and would have the negro just on the verge of the solution of the whole mystery when the great fear would sweep over him play like the night watch did it, but again and he would become silent. What is regarded as a most important and significant circumstance in bearing out the newly developed theory that the girl the child he was going to "play like never left the factory after she went in there to get her pay enthe night watch did ft," and then the velope Saturday noon is the fact that Lee will not swear that he

SLAYER'S HAND PRINT LEFT ON ARM OF GIRL

Hope for apprehension of the slayer of Mary Phagan has Because of her physical condition, Mrs. Pankhrust, who was temporarity released from Holloway jail April 12 because of illness brought on by a stamped in blood on the sleeve of the dead girl's jacket.

The discovery was made by a Georgian reporter in the course fice of a minute inspection of the girl's clothes yesterday evening.

The finger prints are on the right arm of the light silk dress. The imprints of two fingers are just below the shoulder, staining purple the lavender of the child's dress and penetrating to the arm, as if they were established at the pressure of powerful fingers

A third print is that of a thumb, blurred somewhat as with a great pressure, but offering possibilities of analysis. 'With the discovery of the finger prints, detectives employed in the case believe they hav a tangible clew. The Bertillon system of detection will be brought into play, and suspects will be placed through its unfailing catechism.

The search for other finger prints will be made zealously. Detectives of the Pinkerton agency, several of whom are on the case, are known to affect largely this mode of detection, on the theory that every man has his distinctive finger prints, and that the impressions of the fingers of no two individuals are identical.

The evidence borne in finger prints is regarded as conclusive in modern courts. On this fact the police of Atlanta to-day are hoping more firmly than ever that they will be successful in their trail of the man who killed little Mary Phagan.

Dr. J. W. Hurt, County Physician, conducted last night a close examination of Mary Phagan's body, in the effort to determine the nature of the injuries inflicted by her brutal slayer. He entered alone the chamber in which the dead girl lay, and at the conclusion of his inspection refused to make a report of what he

Nevill, and one in particular that she used to relate was of a very good-natured lady who was always helping a relative of hers who was very extravagant. Having one summer lent this feather-brained creature a .considerable sum of money, what was her surprise at the end of the season to be applied to again in order that what were described as some pressing debts might be settled. "I am very sorry," said the kind-hearted lady "but I can't possibly help you again just now. In order to lend you that money some time ago I was forced to go without a motor this season.' "Dear me," was the reply, "if I had only known that I should have been delighted to have lent you mine.'

Mr. James T. Brady, a New York

awyer, tells this amusing story. When he first opened an office in New York he took a basement room which had been previously occupied by a cobbler. He was somewhat an-

It was a party of visitors seeing the sights in Pittsburg that finally entered the conservatory presented to the city by Mr. Phipps. The curator while showing them around was called away on business and left the visitors in charge of one of the clerks. They came to a beautiful statue which was admired immensely. It was of translucent marble. He pointed out the excellencies of the statue, told the name of the sculptor, and showed it from every viewpoint. One asked: "Alabaster, isn't it?" "No," ha said, "Venue."

The following good story was told not long ago at one of the Atlanta

IAVE been asked to give an opin ion as to whether or not organ ized baseball is a trust, Although am unable to give a positive anto this question I will say that certainly is a trust in effect and i fact. Whether it is a trust tech cally and legally could only be de-ermined by Congress. The legal definition of a trust is "A corporation or combination ndividuals under one head a which destroys competition." Whether organized baseball stroys competition or not I cannot say. But this much is certain, all organized baseball clubs in this country are under an agreemnt with the National Commission which is headed by one man, Garry Herrmann. This fact would tend to make it a trust.

Although the moguls night be able o stand an investigation of this sort hey certainly would not welcome one. If such a course were taken longress would at least limit the reserve clause and put a stop to the blacklisting of players who did not wish to sign a contract with any one particular club.

I BELIEVE that the proposed Government investigation was absolutely responsible for President Navin of the Detroit club hurrying matters in the Cobb case and bringing it so readily to a satisfactory close.

N my opinion the one remedy for all this trouble about players signing would be to limit the reserve bility of his teammates.

The club owners have a one year eserve clause now, but if a player efuses to report the next year he suspended, which amounts to the ame thing as blacklist. According

According to an agreement between all clubs in the world—and he's a baseball to be is, in fact, an outcast unless he signs with his original team.

Perhaps the best remedy after all would be for Congress to investigate and decide once and for all whether onto organized baseball is a trust.

Blood Troubles...S. S.

The word medicine is one of the most abused in our language. There are certain medicinal properties just as necessary to health as the food we eat. Take, for example, the well-known tonic medicine S. S. This famous blood purifier contains medicinal components just as vittal and essential to healthy blood as the elements of wheat, roast beef, the fats and the sugars that make up our daily ration.

As a matter of fact, there is one ingredient in S. S. which serves the active purpose of stimulating each cellular part of the body to the healthy and judicious selection of its own essential nutriment. That is why it regenerates the blood supply; why it has such a tremendous influence in overcoming eczema, rash, pimples, and all skin afflictions.

And in regenerating the tissues S. S. S. has a rapid and positive antidotal effect upon all those irritating influences that cause rhematism, sore throat, weak eyes, falling hair, loss of weight, thin pale cheeks, and that weariness of muscle and nerve that is generally experienced as spring fever. Get a bottle of S. S. S. at any drug store, and in a few days you will not only feel bright and energetic, but you will be the picture of new life. S. S. S. is prepared only in the laboratory of The Swift Specific Co., 137 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., who maintain a very efficient Medical Department, where all who have any blood disorder of a stubborn nature may write freely for advice and a special book of instruction. S. S. S. is sold everywhere by drug stores, department and general stores.

SMITH STICKS ON FINES, BUT

By Percy H. Whiting.

NDER the lash of fines and threats (implied if not expressed) Bill Smith is driving onward a wavering pitching staff.
Yesterday he launched his sole remaining-winner, Gil Price, at the heads of the Volunteers—only to see him beaten, 4 to 3, in the topsy-turviest ball game Atlanta has seen in years.

To-day goodness only knows whom he will work. He will probably line up the whole bunch, warm them up together and send in the man who has the most. The chances are it will be Musser or Weaver.

A hunch remains that Musser has a lot of stuff left. His last out he was given a forlorn hope and carried

The rumor went out last week that several of the Cracker pitchers were hitting the high spots again. Evidently the news was not long in getting to baseball headquarters. The cesult was that when some of the Cracker hurlers step up to the captain's office next tayday to draw their coin they will find a fat slice removed.

"We've got some ball players' money in our pockets," said President Callaway yesterday. "We heard about the joy riding and we assessed some fines. We are out to win this year. We don't intend to let a matter of thirst stand in the way."

only Price delivered a literal a run.

Note also that Gilbert Price held the Vols to 3 hits for four bases—and that he made three hits himself, for four bases. And yet he lost.

Welsh Laces Ketchel 'TechTeam Will Not Do'-Heisman Sporting Food Alabama Squad Shows Much Class

By J. H. Heisman,

THAT Dahlgren escaped alive is due partly to good luck, partly to heroic pitching in the pinches.

Consider, please, that the recruit from Redland, walked seven men in the first three innings and yet was not scored on—and this in the face of the fact that he was pitching to the team that leads the league in slugging.

Inning after inning the Crackers filled the bases and inning after inning the old pinch bit souldn't be delivered, thanks to the amazing curves and cunning of this skinny kid, who rose to leights of reai pitching eminence when the need arose.

You can write the Crackers' epitaph in either one of two ways and it will tell the tale.

They didn't hit in the pinches

They didn't hit baseman, Gosa, who along with Mc-Dowell in left field and Joplin, as short, ranks as a topnotcher. The Red and White team does not stack up as a bunch of very dangerous litters. Their pitching staff is fair. Pratt, the man concerning whose work on the mound so much has been written, showed very little against Tech. I do not think he can continue to got a year with the can continue to got a year with the can

TECH revealed unto herself, how-ever, a whole lot of new things in these two games. One was that it is not impossible for the team to get safe hits in numbers, and again that they are by no means the consistent-ly strong defensive team that had been hoped. The team exactly reversed all former work by hitting terrifically, and fielding miserably. The base running, too, was far below what the Yellow Jackets have been showing. The defects in these departments cost them held grant was the state of the state o departments cost them both games.

There is no denying that as at present constituted the Tech team will not do. The new men, though coming to Tech with "reps" a mile long, have fallen down most lamentably time and again. Never have i seen a team that promised so well in the early spring disappoint so in the early spring disappoint so badly in mid-season. It is quite ap-parent that nothing can save it from annihilation save immediate and ex-tensive reconstruction. In the ac-tual match games, but three or four of the players have shown real class. Among this number must be included Captain Montague, whose game has been nothing short of superb all the way through. Attridge and Witherngton have also done well. The ottching staff has done fairly well, out it is inclined to be wobbly. Pit's nitting has been one of the few rays of sunshine. The rest of the men speaking from their exhibitions if games, not in practice, run all in way from "punk," through "punk er to "punkest."

Yes, something will have to be done to that Tech team—something big and quick. It will be done.

With these changes, Manager Smith will have but two men to cut off by to-night, a pitcher and an infielder, Jack Kernan will probably be sold to the Albany Club of the South Atlantic League.

Black team seem to account best for the strong showing of the club, One of these was rather expected, the other quite unexpected. The former is the fine and "illegant" hitting that the team has been doing all season, and the other is the decided effect.

Parents Should Counsel Them

About Their Habits

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

EFORE you send your little girls B EFORE you send your little girls and boys to the public school. take them in your arms and take them in your arms and talk with them pleasantly, but yet seriously, regarding their conversation and habits while away from you. If you are not mentally fitted for the task of giving them some knowledge of the great facts which underlied all created life and giving these faces in the right way, it might be well for you to consult some of the women's clubs in your own town and ask for the best teacher of eugenics, and find what booklets have been written to guide parents in these very matters.

Eugenics Important.

This science of eugenics is becom-ing an important factor in the training an important factor in the training of children, and it will not be difficult for you to learn something of its workings. It shows how the world is progressing, for ten years ago, when this subject was discussed in this column, it brought down a flock of disapproving letters, and horrified parents declared the proposition was one ents declared the proposition was one ents declared the proposition was one which aimed at the destruction of innocent childhood.

Now there are eugenic organizations formed all over the world, with the object of beginning to train children in right ideals of sex relations, and in so laying the foundation of mental and moral and physical health for the rising generations. The scientific facts of the dangers of alcoholic stimulants are being taught in schools. stimulants are being taught in schools, and it is having its marked effects on the minds of the young.

Ignorance Is Worse.

One small boy urged his parents to avoid the use of stimulants, giving them a scientific reason for his plan. It will be impossible for that boy to become a drunkard, for deep in his conscience is the knowledge of the destructive powers which lie in strong drink. The dangers which lie in ignorance of sex facts are much graver than ignorance of the evils of drink. Childhood is imperfiled, youth, maturity and future generations menaced by this ignorance.

The public schools and all private schools and all country schools are endangering evil along with good. Children are taught everything save the most vital truths of life during school hours, and there is no guidance or protection given them out of school hours.

Warren's Sister Curtly Refuses to Help Helen Entertain Their Cousin

"But, dear, she's used to having her coffee and toast in bed," ventured Helen, "She says it makes her head ache to get up without it, and that her mother always lets her sleep until nine."
"Piffle! If Aunt Emma wants to spoil her, all right, but she'll get no humoring here. That's all rot about her delicate health, She looks stronger than you do, and I'm not going to let you wait on her."

It was so rarely that Warren considered her, that Helen felt a faint glow of pleasure at this.

But there was no lamp and no way to heat the curler except by the gas range in the kitchen. So Alice propped a handglass on the kitchen window and began to curl her hair.

Helen was furious at the thought of any hairdressing in the kitchen, but she was helpless to object.

When she had seen Warren off Helen went to Alice's door. There was no answer at first, but a louder knock brought a sleepy "Come in."
The disordered room grated on Helen, and she gianced disapprovingly at the clothes strewn about.

"Alice, it's ten minutes after nine." she said coldly, picking up a skirt from the floor.

of this moment, but it will have its day soon, I think, for we have a wonderful exponent of natural charm and the charm of naturalness prominently before us now. This is Miss Valli Valli, the actress now playing in New York in "The Purple Road."

na, who loved Napoleon wisely-if too well for his deserving—Valli Valli is an exquisite, sympathy-compelling glare of the low-swung incandescen lamp that revealed-but found nothing to betray. A true "crowning glory is her coronet of copper-toned brown hair, so plentiful that it is quite sufficient dower of beauty without the addition of a soft pink flushed skin and great gray eyes. And later she told me her simple, effective method of caring for hair and skin;

up. I don't use pink and white glar-ing high-lights, but the bronze, brown-red tones the men of the stage employ. This is so much more like the tones of the human skin. You the tones of the human skin. You see, to look natural on the stage one has to use make-up as THE EXTRA OUNCE OF EMPHASIS that counteracts the glare of the lights. That is not needed on the street—though I must confess to a very earnest affection for my powder puff. As a finish—to dust off the little shine from the

'How do you do it?" I asked, "How do you hold all of us throbbing and waiting, as you stand in your simple gray frock on the grand staircase in Napoleon's palace, while all around are magnificent women in imperially gorgeous clothes?"

"Ah, but I do believe in naturalness everywhere. Look natural, be natural, and then the great feelings can find expression through you."

The dainty singing actress had perched herself fearlessly under the

Among the peasants the place has always been avoided as "The Devil's Cometer."

A very effective form of silent pro lest has been discovered by the Ber-lin suffragists—one that does not place its perpetrators within the clutches of the far-reaching law and clutches of the far-reaching law and yet at the same time successfully disturbs meetings which are not in sympathy with the woman's movement. A large body of women attend such meetings, and, at a given signal, rise and slowly make their way out of the hall. Nothing is more disconcerting or annoying to a speaker than to see his for her) and produced a speaker than to see nis (or her) audience fading away, and this general exodus naturally alls for explanation from the remain-ing hearers, which is all the women desire.

A letter posted at Paddington, London, on March 7, 1881, has just risen from its ashes. Whatever the cause, this letter was delivered at Chiswick about three miles away, during the past week. The lady to whom it wa addressed has been dead for three of four years, and the communication was received by her executor.

Sir Walter Raleigh and his panions introduced into England the abit of smoking tobacco on their re turn from Virginia in 1585.

Dorothy Dix Tells You How

To Be Happy Though Stout

"Women Have Got Fat on the Brain, and Have Gone Mad on Getting Thin"

By DOROTHY DIX:

A Real Food.

There was a low-throated little English laugh. "I know a wonderful skin food or tonic or whatever you call it over here. Soap and water. The best of soap and plenty of water.

I was seven, I was seven, "Of course you add fresh air to ground here." soaked missive in which she be-wails her increased belt measure, and asks me if I can give her have a lean and hungry look?

lish," said I, sure of my ground here.

"You're quite right: I do. I love outdoors—and gardens—ALL outdoors—and gardens—All it have houses and gardens—and so I may have flowers—and dogs—and the healthy, money things I love."

Any good, reliable recipe for reducing her weight.

No. I cannot. If I knew any way to make this too, too solid flesh melt I should not be engaged in the occupation of writing articles for this column for my daily bread. I should be lending Mr. Rockefeller money, and helping a stringy one that looks like an anatomical exhibit of glands and muscles. And she said it with the sweet out such poor neighbors as Andrew Carnegie and Hetty Green. The people naturalness that makes this charming little fresh air, soap and water English girl even prettier off the stage with even an alleged anti-fat remedy rake in fortunes. A real reduction cure, that would actually reduce, would coin so much money that it would make Alladin's lamp look like old junk.

For women have got fat on the brain, and they have all gone stark, staring mad on the subject of getting thin. It has superseded all other interests with them, and where two or three are gathered together the conversation becomes nothing more nor less than an experience meeting of the different fool things they have tried in order to acquire a willowy figure. And at that, they have failed.

A Burning Issue.

How to get thin is the burning issue in every feminine breast. The choicest ompliment that you can pay a lady is o tell her how much she has fallen off, and the feminine definition of a cat is a sister woman who says, "Why, my dear, how well you are looking! The maddening thirst of the Ancient Mariner who saw water, water everywhere, but had not a drop to drink, is experienced every day by mil-lions of women who sit at tables groaning under food and drink, but who deny ing face. themselves everything but a sip of wa-"Nobod or the futurist, the thin, aenemic tubercular looking woman may be prettier than the plump, healthy one but as a mater of fact most of us don't object to a reasonable amount of adipose tissue on a woman. We like it. This is, especially true of men wh as a general thing, prefer the kind of a girl who makes a nice armful, instead of the kind that looks as if she were nothing but the original rib out of which her sex was made. You never hear of a husband urging his wife to bant and grow thin, or to lace a little tighter. Or the contrary, every husband who takes enough interest in his wife to notice what she is doing urges her to eat all she wants, and drink what likes, and have her clothes made loose enough to be comfortable.

However you look at it, the cult of emaciation is a foolish one. To begin with, it is as broad as it is long, and it has its disadvantages as well as its advantages. It is quite true that a slim agure looks younger than a plump one but when a woman achieves a slightness n one place she gets it in another, and with the twenty-inch waist goes a neck ike a turkey gobbler's, and arms the size of a vard stick.

Also wrinkles come quicker in a thin face than in a plump one, so that in the end it is a choice between having a young-looking figure or a young-look

An Honest, Dependable Medicine is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. A Root and Herb medicine originated nearly forty years ago by Lydia E. Pinkham of Lynn, Mass., for controlling female ills.

Its wonderful success in this line has made it the safest and most dependable medicine of the age for women and no woman suffering from female ills does herself justice who does not give it a trial.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

Answer: Your hens are afflicted with what is commonly known as scaly legs. It is a very annoying trouble, but one that can be very easily controlled if taken in time. It is caused by a burrowing insect which digs its way under the scales of the leg and throws out the rough matter, tion. After they have vorked at it for many months in some instances. tion. After they have worked at it for many months, in some instances, it becomes so thick and heavily incrusted that it stiffens the joints so much that it makes it difficult for the fowl to walk. The wise thing to do is when you notice the first traces of it in your flock to get to work at once and dip every one that shows the least signs of the trouble into a can of kerosene just up to the feathers, but not onto them. Repeat this in about a week, and if they are not very rough two applications will effect a cure. Then they should be treated with a little cotton seed oil, or something of that nature to smooth something of that nature to smooth hem up. In cases like yours, where hey have so badly rougl ened, it will e necessary to give then a number f treatments of the kerosene to ef-

THE ATLANTA GEORGIAN

Recalling a Judge-- And Women Led the Crusade in This First Example

Judge Weller, of San Francisco, has been recalled by a vote of the good people of that progressive city, and conservative citizens throughout the nation will be duly shocked at a radical performance which these conservative citizens have believed, or professed to believe, would shatter the foundations of order and of established government.

In this dreaded San Francisco situation there is another condition which should startle the reactionaries, and that is, that the women led the crusade for the recall of Judge Weller, and cast a large part of the vote which recalled him

But when conservative, or even reactionary, citizens are familiar with the situation which resulted in the recall of Judge Weller they will be more disposed to realize that in this first instance at least of the recall of a judge their fearful forebodings are not wholly justified.

San Francisco is no more free from vice than any other city. There exist in that city, as elsewhere, evil men who prey upon the weaknesses of young girls and lure them to their ruin and to a life of shame.

As a rule such scoundrels, through the secrecy of their acts, or through the "pull" which they possess in certain corrupt quarters, escape the punishment of their evil deeds. But one such villain was caught and brought before the Grand Jury in San Francisco and held to answer before Judge Weller.

The crime of this scoundrel-we refer to the indicted criminal-was of the vilest kind, and the criminality of his act could not even find palliation in the consent of the girl he had destroyed.

Yet Judge Weller, through a sympathetic feeling, or through the influence of that political "pull" of which we hear and see so much, put this vile criminal under merely nominal bonds and allowed him to jump the bail and leave the State.

Judge Weller's action was typical of a condition which the good people of San Francisco had determined to destroy, and in order to begin the remedy forcefully and effectively they began with a petition to recall this unworthy judge.

Let the reactionaries of the country, if they will, defend this criminal and this judge who acted in collusion with him.

Let the reactionaries attack the principle of the recall and the policy of woman's suffrage in this instance, if they can find arguments with which to do so.

But The Georgian believes that the recall of judges has begun in a case which gives every evidence that the principle will be carefully and intelligently applied, and only exerted when its operation is obviously for the best interests of the commu-

The Georgian also believes that the women have again demonstrated their intelligence and conscience and fine moral quality as citizens and voters, and The Georgian hails this case of Judge Weller as another and a convincing proof of the propriety and practicability of the progressive principles which it has so consistently advocated.

Can Catch Up

'It cannot be helped—it is Possibly the Law as it should be—that the law is behind the times."

Oliver Wendell Holmes, Jus-

the law must necessarily content itself with following a considerable distance in the wake of the world's prevailing thoughtbecause it can only embody "beliefs that have triumphed in the battle of ideas" and "while there is doubt . . . the time for law has not come.

This is the same as to say that judges must decide to-day's cases according to the ideas of yesterday, and must not apply the ideas of to-day until after they have ceased to be applicable.

If the law is to be thought of as a building, to which the Legislature adds a new story to meet every new social situation. and if the new story cannot be built until after the new situation has been thoroughly mastered and understood by the mass of the people, without any help from the courts-then this astonishing philosophy of Justice Holmes must be allowed to be cor-

But if, on the contrary, the law is not at all to be thought of as a dead structure of brick or steel-if it is rather to be thought of as a living body, with red blood and brains and the breath of generations of justice-seeking men-if it has feet to stand on and hands to lay hold of the right weapons in the vast arsenal of principles and precedents-why, then, of course, the learned Justice has made a grave mistake.

Letters From The Georgian's Readers

CONCERNING A TRANSFER. Editor The Georgian:

As a reader of the Hearst pa-pers ever since the first publica-tion of The American in Chicago. I take this means of bringing the notice of the people in the city an injustice on the part the street car company to a stranger in this city.

I attended the baseball game Friday and after the game boarded the first car I could crowd onto to get to the Terminal Ho-tel, where I am stopping. On paying my fare, I asked if the car would carry me to the Terminal Station, and was told by the con-Station, and was told by the con-ductor that it would not, but that he would give me a transfer, and that I should take any car marked Terminal Station. I left this car at the postoffice and walked over to the corner of Broad and Ma-Fletta Streets and took the first car marked, as I was directed to do by the conductor. The con-ductor on that car refused to take my transfer, and requested a cash fare, which I paid, as he said the transfer I had was from a Ponce DeLeon car and this car was the same line, so he could not accept my transfer. He said I could get off and use this transfer on a Hunter car. What I would like to know is why I should have to wait for a certain car going to the same des-tination (for me)? There is no reason whatever for the street railway company not using a special transfer on a special car, as the passenger accepts this trans-fer in good faith and has abso-lutely no way of knowing whether it is good or not. STRANGER FROM CHICAGO.

INFLUENCE OF HOME LIFE.

Editor The Georgian: an article by Mrs. Bonnefield. an article by Mrs. Boinefield, po-lice matron in Atlanta, in which she says that home life is more cause than anything else of girls' ruin, for which I want to thank her for her good, plain words. I agree with her in all she says. My plea is for mothers (and fathers) to talk plainly to their children. Do not let the children be afraid to make a confidant of mother or of father.

Labor and Deserved Leisure By Ella Wheeler Wilcox Copyright, 1913, by American-Journal-Examiner.

B EFORE we ask for leisure let The sacredness of time-

Labor and Leisure make life beautiful

When well divided, and labor means

Deserved reward, and leisure sweet repose.

Or happy explorations in the fair Ascending paths of pleasure. When we grow

In health, in wisdom and in happiness.

Through hours of freedom, then, and then alone.

We prove our right to clamor for more time:

But when the ginshop and the gambling den. The dive, the public dance hall and the street Send sodden creatures slowly back to toil After the ending of a holiday,

It makes a louder protest than the voice

Of tyrant Greed against the shortened hour And lengthened wage of labor.

Look to it The leisure lifts you ere you ask for more.

THE above lines written by me have called forth several criticisms and protests, some kindly meant, some meant unkindly, from working people and their defenders. All these protests have been made from a mistaken point of view. No one living believes more fully in the shortening of hours of labor than the writer of the lines quoted.

I work frequently fifteen hours a day. But I work for myself. and because I like my work. I have no employer, and that makes an entirely different thing of la-

Eight Hours Sufficient.

Eight hours a day are quite enough for continuous work of any kind. Most employers, heads of business houses and capital-, ists, who have the money-making fever, work more than that. But they also work for themselves.

No one can find fault or discharge them or dock their wage if they happen to be late or take a holi-

To be compelled to go to work at a certain hour and to remain until the prescribed time, as has already been stated, is quite another story.

I hope to live to see the time when by inventions and by new conditions the whole drudgery of the world's work will be done on five hours' time and the human race allowed the remainder to grow, mentally and spiritually.

As I came of a long-lived race on two sides, I may realize my dream, but the world will realize it some time, surely,

When I think of the cotton mills, with their deafening roar and flying dust, where I have seen women working ten and twelve hours a day and begging positions for their children (and opposing any movement to prevent the employment of children as I personally knew them to be); when I think of the feather factories and sweatshops and the thousands of other manufactories where no light of day ever penetrates and men, women and children are sacrificing eyesight and health on the altar of greed, I long to open all the doors and send the toilers forth for green fields and the woods for half of every werking day; and I know the world would be better off and the progress of every race accelerated were it made possible for every toiler in the land to enjoy three themselves to help make the world realize their need that the quoted lines were written.

The employer's objection to the shorter hour of labor is understood as the voice of Greed.

But when the ginshop and the gambling den. The dive, the public dance hall and the street Send sodden creatures back to

After the ending of a holiday It makes a louder protest than the voice Of tyrant Greed . . .

I have seen a woman ween and have heard her regret the announcement of an unexpected holiday for her husband. He was a workingman, a laborer.

She knew the holiday meant the wasting of his wages and the greater injury to his health than two days' work.

It meant the ginshop and the gambling den.

When an employer sees and knows of many similar results from holidays he is strengthened in his arguments against the shortened hours of labor. He does not stop to think of the thousands of women and the hundreds of sober and moral men all about him who need the added leisure to

He does not consider the pitiable cases of poor fathers who love their children, yet who never see them save when they are asleep.

Argument in Favor.

Nor the numbers of wives and mothers rising at the dawn to prepare a breakfast for husbands and sons who return at nightfall unable to do more than to fall into exhausted sleep.

For every argument against the movement of shortened hours of labor there are a dozen good ones in its favor, but it is a misfortune when the laboring man himself, by his bad habits during hours of leisure, makes a louder protest than the enemies of the movement are making.

Charity Breeds Beggars

Any Man Who Has a Job Has a Chance, He Says, and the World Needs Capable People as Never Before. It Is Able and Willing to Pay Them for It if They Can Render a Service.

Charity in the past has been prompted by weakness and whim -the penance of rogues-and often we give to get rid of the troublesome applicant. Beggary and virtue were imagined to have something akin. Rags and honesty were sort of synonymous, and we spoke of honest hearts that beat 'neath ragged jackets. That was poetry, but was it art? Or was it just a little harmless exercise of the lachrymose glands?

Cringed and Crawled.

Riches and roguery were spoken of in one breath, unless the gentlemen were present, and then we curtsled, cringed and crawled. These things doubtless dated back to a time when the only mode of accumulating wealth was through oppression. Pirates were rich-honest men were poor. To be poor proved that you were not a robber. The heroes in war took cities and all they could carry away was theirs.

The monasteries were passing rich in the Middle Ages, because their valves opened only one way -they received much and paid out nothing. To save the souls of men was a just equivalent for accepting their services for the little time they were on earth.

The monasteries owned the land, and the rentals paid by the fiefs and villeins went into the Church's treasuries. Sir Walter Scott had an abbot say this: "I took the vow of poverty, and find myself with an income of twenty thousand pounds a year."

But wealth did not burden the monks forever. Wealth changes hands-that is one of its peculiarities. Came wild war, red of tooth and claw. And the soldiery, who heretofore had been used only to protect the religious orders, now, flushed with victory, turned against them Easy to Listen Then.

Charges were trumped up against churchmen high in authority. The monasteries were "To the victors belong the spoils" was the motto of a certain man who was President of the United States! so persistent was the war idea of acquiring wealth.

The property of the religious orders was confiscated, and as a diers were given big tracts of

The great estates in Europe all have their origin in this wellestablished custom of dividing the spoils. The plan of taking the property of each or all who were guilty of sedition, contumacy and contravention was well established by precedents that traced back to Cain.

When George Washington appropriated the estate of Roger Morris, forty centuries of precedent looked down upon him.

Also it might be added that if a man owned a particularly valuable estate, it was easy for a soldier to listen to and believe the report that the owner had spoken ill of the king, and given succor to the enemy.

Then the soldier felt it his "duty" to punish the recreant one by taking his property. That

The Past Is Dead.

Then The Age of the Barons has given away to The Age of the Merchants. The Merchants, whose business it is to carry things from where they are plentiful to where they are needed. But they did business by finesse and cleverness flavored with deception. But the times have changed. Truth is now an asset, and a lie is a liability. Merchants to-day deal with their friends. Money is incidental to service.

Comes co-operation so quietly, and with so little ostentation that men do not realize the change, "Lay hold on eternal life," said St. Paul, writing to Timothy. The proper translation we now know should have been, "Lay hold on the age to come." All life is a preparation, just as all life is a sequence—a result. The past is dead, the present is dying, and only that which is to come is alive. Philanthropy once was palliation, just as the entire practice of Garibaldi in London By REV. THOMAS B. GREGORY.

ARIBALDI'S famous visit to G England began April 1, 1863—and for the following twenty-four days the red-shirted old hero was given the time of his life. Never any foreigner, hardly any native hero, had ever been tendered such a magnificent reception. The Duke of Sutherland's fourhorse carriage, containing the Son of the Skipper of Nice, struggled for six long hours through five miles of London streets, between the starting point at the vessel on which Garibaldi arrived and Stafford House Square, near St. James Palace. A half million people had turned out to meet the man in the red shirt and gray blanket, and when the square was reached it seemed that all London was there to meet the liberator.

Amid a "noise of shouting like the noise of the sea in storm." says an eyewitness, "Garibaldi stepped out of the carriage, as calm as in the day of battle, into a circle of fair ladies and great statesmen on the steps of Stafford House, while the Duke's carriage, in which he had come literally fell to pieces in the stable, strained to breaking-point by the weight of the thousands of strong arms that had pulled at it and clung to it as it passed through a city gone mad with joy." And it is well-to remember, in spite of what has been said about the Duke of Sutherland and his carriage, the fair ladies and great statesmen, that the wonderful re-ception that Garibaldi met with was given to him by the plain people of England.

The working men of England were in the midst of the battle for a frachisement. They were of England.

fighting King Privilege as hard as Garibaldi had been fighting the Bourbons, and now that the hero of Italy, the plain man of the people who had emancipated his country from the tyranny of the Bourbon rule, was actually in their midst they were delirious with joy.

It was an unexpected privilege to carry one of themselves in triumph through London streets, as if he had been a Caesar or a Wellington. It was the tribute of the democracy of England to the man who, with his good sword, had done so much for the democracy of Italy. It was humanity answering humanity, justice clasping hands with justice, the spirit of liberty in the British Isles shouting its mighty welcome to the lovers of liberty in the historic peninsula in the great Blue Garibaldi gave England as much as he received from her. He won all hearts, those of the nobility, as well as those of the yeomanry. Tennyson, with whom he visited, and smoked, and rene visited, and smoked, and recited Italian poetry, says of him:

"What a noble human being! His manners have a certain divine simplicity in them, such as I have never witnessed in a fattice of these islands, among man at least, and they are gentler than those of most volume maidens whom of most young maidens whom I
